Masters of Architecture (M Arch) in Urban Design Program

The Masters of Architecture in Urban Design program offers students to shift and enhance their previously set paradigm to the macro scale of perceiving the underlined architectural urban scenarios. This course addresses the realm of the urbane by contextualizing the different practices and cultures of the cities. The famous German Architect Walter Gropius said: “Society needs a good image of itself. That is the true job of an architect.” Our Masters in Architecture (M-Arch) Programme is designed to teach graduates, various dynamics of city design, and the scientific and artistic factors that make up the study of the urbane. The various disciplines of this program include History and Pedagogy, Urban or Rural Planning, Construction Management, Architecture Theory, Landscape Design, etc. We focus on the all-round development of students, polishing their professional, artistic and entrepreneurial abilities in the process.
